DAINTIES IN MILLINERY.

Red in Spring Bonnets—Changes in Hosiery—Summer Butterflies.

Picked up in the Fashion Column.

Butterflies are prominent among novelties in ornaments.

White French poplin, simple and elegant, is sometimes trimmed with white velvet.

Black lace aprons over gold or red silk are a new English fashion. They are fastened by silver clasps at the waist.

Hosiery shows several new departures. Among them, vertical stripes, Highland plaids in various colors, and some shot effects to match the new silks.

New bonnets that look wintry yet have a dash of spring about them are made of silk embroidered net puffed over gold cloth, with a large bow at the back. A band of flowers thickly set without foliage, such as forget-me-nots, daisies or mimosa. A group of tiny red birds is placed just inside the bonnet, which is of the close woven texture, and has a small left side, where the birds peck outward, as if to where in the nest. A bonnet of red quills is a curious novelty, the crown being of the quills and the front trimmed with red ostrich tips. Braids of fanciful colors compose many bonnets.

THE MAULING MANIA.

Two Victims Clash Each Other Before Boston Culture.

BOSTON, March 28.—The sparing match between Charles Mitchell, the English champion, and John Kilran, Boston's second heavy weight, occurred last evening. There was a great deal of noise, and at 3:30 P. M. "Patsy" stepped on and "Billy" Mahoney, the supervisors of the battle, stepped upon the stage. The entertainers were in full dress, and bouts of three rounds each by local professionals. After a long wait Mitchell and Kilran appeared and were greeted with great applause. During the wait William Sheriff, the "President" of the ring, and the two managers, were in the ring. Kilran, who had left upon his right shoulder a cut, soon announced that Arthur Chambers would back him to fight Mitchell. At the end of the bout, when the announcement was made, Kilran stepped to the center of the ring. Mitchell and Kilran were apparently summing up Kilran's round. The second round was more interesting. During this round Mitchell gave Kilran a body blow which sent him to the floor in a rather bruised position. The two managers were rating give and take to this close audience cheering mildly. In the fourth round the men clinched four times. Every time Kilran doubted that Mitchell was still alive, and while the latter pretended to be pounding the British into mince meat, but every blow correctly slipped by Mitchell's body. Kilran's last grasp was his best. Both men were fresh at the close, and it was evident that no knock-out was intended. The receipts were about $7,000, of which Mitchell and Madden get one-third and Kilran and Barker the balance.
